Spring greetings, colleagues of the Council for Learning Disabilities!

I hope this message finds you amid a healthy, productive, and exciting spring semester. I know that the past few months have been a busy, hectic time for all citizens of the world. I sincerely hope that you are taking opportunities during this season of renewal to take care of yourself and those around you while also continuing your impactful work as advocates on behalf of diverse individuals with learning disabilities. I continue to be proud to serve as the president of this organization; collectives like ours are going to be critical as we move forward in shaping our new reality and as we work together to provide evidence-based academic, behavioral, and social–emotional supports to our students, our teachers, and our communities.

The Board of Trustees of CLD continues to work diligently to ensure the mission, vision, and goals of our organization are being met, and that the work of the collective continues to move forward. I want to take a moment and highlight some of the accomplishments of our organizational leaders during the past few months. First, I would like to congratulate our newly elected officers for the CLD Executive Committee, Dr. Sara Flanagan (vice president) and Dr. Beverly Weiser (treasurer). Dr. Flanagan will begin her term in the presidential line on July 1, 2022, and Dr. Weiser will serve a second three-year term as the treasurer. We very much look forward to working with you in the coming years.

Dr. Donna Sacco (Leadership Development) has been working with Cohorts 9 and 10 of the Leadership Academy to provide them mentorship support and coordinate their work on a leadership project—another annual activity of our organization. Thank you to Dr. Benikia Kressler for supporting the mentorship and development of Leadership Academy 9. We do hope that you will consider applying for the 2022 Leadership Institute or Leadership Academy, to be held (continued on page 2)
The CLD Diversity Committee continues to stay active. Its members have formed more research groups and continue to disseminate vital information about supporting students with learning disabilities from underrepresented communities. We engage in professional development and mentorship throughout the year.

Finally, we are seeking nominations for our annual awards; we hope you will consider submitting a nomination for yourself or a deserving colleague. These awards highlight the outstanding and impactful work of our organization members, and we hope to have a diverse array of nominees for these prestigious honors. Nominations for the Early Career Research, Educators/Teachers of the Year, and Floyd G. Hudson Outstanding Service awards are due by May 31, 2022. Please contact the respective committee chair coordinating these awards if you have questions.

Amy Pochler is quoted as saying, “Find a group of people who challenge and inspire you. Spend a lot of time with them and it will change your life.” I, again, am proud to serve this wonderful organization and its members: you, the people who challenge and inspire me to continue to do the work that we do with and for diverse individuals with learning disabilities, their families, and their communities. I know that we have seen trying times these last few months and years, and no doubt more are on their way, but I take comfort in knowing that there are people like you in the world who are always willing to roll up their sleeves and ask, “What can we do next?” I hope that you will continue to find ways to connect and support CLD in demanding access to a high-quality education for all individuals and that we can continue to serve as a place for you to come and be inspired by others working toward the same goal.

Onward,

Joseph Morgan
2021–2022 CLD President

On behalf of the Nominations and Elections Committee, please join me in congratulating Sara Flanagan, who will serve as our incoming vice president, and Beverly Weiser, who will begin her second term as treasurer, effective July 1, 2022. Thank you to Diane Bryant, Yun-Ju Hsiao, and David Scanlon, who verified our election results.

Immediate Past President
The CLD Liaison Committee recently signed onto a letter sponsored by the Consortium for Citizens with Disabilities that was sent to the U.S. House Subcommittee for Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies regarding 2022 appropriations. That letter is included below. The US Department of Education also made available in February the Fact Sheet: Providing Students with Disabilities Free Appropriate Public Education During the COVID-19 Pandemic and Addressing the Need for Compensatory Services Under Section 504.

January 2022

The Honorable Rosa DeLauro, Chair
House Appropriations Subcommittee on
Labor, HHS, Education, and Related Agencies
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

The Honorable Patty Murray, Chair
Appropriations Subcommittee on
Labor, HHS, Education, and Related Agencies
U.S. Senate
Washington, DC 20510

The Honorable Tom Cole, Ranking Member
House Appropriations Subcommittee on
Labor, HHS, Education, and Related Agencies
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

The Honorable Roy Blunt, Ranking Member
Appropriations Subcommittee on
Labor, HHS, Education, and Related Agencies
U.S. Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Chair DeLauro, Ranking Member Cole, Chair Murray, and Ranking Member Blunt:

As you work to finalize the Fiscal Year (FY) 2022 appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies (Labor-HHS-ED), the Consortium for Citizens with Disabilities (CCD) Education Task Force strongly urges you to adopt the highest proposed levels for the federal investment in education programs that support infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities, their families, and the educators who serve them. Likewise, we voice our firm opposition to a year-long continuing resolution (CR).

CCD is the largest coalition of national organizations working together to advocate for federal public policy that ensures the self-determination, independence, empowerment, integration, and inclusion of children and adults with disabilities in all aspects of society. To support these goals and ensure that students with disabilities have every opportunity to succeed in school and beyond, Congress must uphold its responsibility to pass comprehensive appropriations bills each year and deliver on its commitment to funding education costs for students with disabilities.

Congress has consistently supported increasing resources to provide essential services to infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities as a bipartisan priority. These programs are more critical than ever as many infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities have struggled to access special education services over the last year. Schools and districts will also need increased funding to reverse crisis-level staffing shortages within special education.

This year, Congress has put forward historic proposals that would significantly increase programs that support infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities, their families, and the educators who serve them. These funds are essential to assuring states and key federally funded programs have the ongoing annual funding necessary to provide the early intervention, education, supports and services that individuals with disabilities as well as educators and providers need. Thus, we respectfully request no less than the following amounts for each program within IDEA in FY 2022, as proposed in the House and/or Senate Labor-HHS-ED appropriations bills:

• Part B Section 611 (Grants to States): $15.5 billion
• Part B Section 619 (Preschool Grants): $503 million
• Part C (Grants to serve infants and toddlers): $732 million
• Part D (National Activities):
  • State Personnel Development: $39 million
  • Technical Assistance and Dissemination: $49 million
  • Personnel Preparation: $250 million
  • Parent Training and Information Centers: $33 million
  • Media and Technology: $32 million

Additionally, we respectfully request funding in the following amounts for additional programs that impact education and outcomes for individuals with disabilities:

• Institute for Education Sciences (IES): $814 million
• National Center for Special Education Research (within IES): $65 million
• Office for Civil Rights: $144 million
• ESSA Title I: $36 billion
• ESSA Title II: $2.3 billion
• Model Demonstrations and TPSID National Coordinating Center (NCC): $15 million
• Protection and Advocacy for Individual Rights (PAIR) program: $20 million
• American Printing House for the Blind (APH): $41 million
• Assistive Technology Act Programs: $44 million

The need for additional funding, as identified above, is critical and cannot be overstated. Congress must fulfill its fiscal duties and pass an FY 2022 rather than continuing to pass CRs that put these historic and much-needed increases in peril. We urge you to provide no less than the amounts noted above to education programs that support infants, toddlers, children, and youth with disabilities, their families, and the educators who serve them.

The Consortium for Citizens with Disabilities (CCD) is the largest coalition of national organizations working together to advocate for federal public policy that ensures the self-determination, independence, empowerment, integration and inclusion of children and adults with disabilities in all aspects of society. The Education Task Force of CCD monitors federal legislation and regulations that address the educational needs of children and youth with disabilities and their families, including regulatory efforts under federal law such as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The Education Task Force advocates for high expectations for children with disabilities under these and other laws.

The Floyd G. Hudson Service Award is presented by the Council for Learning Disabilities for outstanding performance and commitment by a professional who works in the field of learning disabilities in a role outside of the classroom. This CLD member, working in a leadership capacity, enhances the professional learning of others in the field and impacts the lives of persons with learning disabilities. Eligibility for consideration of the Floyd G. Hudson Service Award includes educational professionals who:

• provide professional development, consulting services, or serve in a leadership role working with teachers, other professionals, parents, and students, and
• have provided exemplary services to the LD field for a minimum of five years.

This award is named in memory of Dr. Floyd G. Hudson, a professor at the University of Kansas, who was a leader in the early years of CLD. Dr. Hudson was instrumental in formulating early policy to drive federal and state initiatives in the area of learning disabilities. Don Deshler has said of Dr. Hudson,

As I visit many schools across Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska, I can really see Floyd’s lasting influence. He was a kind, generous, innovative, and collaborative professional. He worked closely with many school districts solving problems, preparing teachers, and implementing more effective programs. Even today, many people here in the Midwest and around the country tell me about their positive experiences working with Floyd, many of which took place more than 20 years ago.

Local chapters and members of the Board of Trustees may nominate candidates, one of whom is selected and then recognized at the annual international conference. In states without active chapters, nominations can be made by CLD members. The award recipient also receives a complimentary registration and membership renewal. During the award program, the recipient is presented with a certificate of recognition and an honorarium. The recipient will also be profiled in LD Forum and on the CLD website. It is expected that the award recipient will give a poster presentation on a topic of their choosing (e.g., effective teaching practices) during the CLD annual conference. Nomination forms are due Tuesday, May 31, 2022. Please see the Call for Nominations on the CLD website (https://council-for-learning-disabilities.org/floyd-g-hudson-service-award/).

For additional information, please contact Dr. Donna Sacco, Leadership Development Committee co-chair, at dmsacco60@gmail.com.

Each year, the Council for Learning Disabilities recognizes outstanding teachers who are CLD members and who consistently provide quality instruction to students with learning disabilities. These teachers, selected by local chapters, provide direct services to students. In states without active chapters, nominations can be made by CLD members. Outstanding teachers are dedicated to implementing evidence-based instructional practices and collaborating with classroom teachers and other service providers to greatly improve the quality of education for all struggling learners.

Candidates for nomination must:

• be active, dues-paying members of CLD, including state chapter membership if state chapter is active,
• provide direct services to students with learning disabilities,
• implement evidence-based instructional practices that result in significant gains in achievement for children, adolescents, or adults who struggle academically, and
• advocate for persons with learning disabilities.

Recipients are guests at the annual international conference. They receive a complimentary registration and a one-year membership renewal. During the conference award program, they receive a certificate of recognition and an honorarium. These members are also profiled in LD Forum and on the national website. Please see the Call for Nominations on the CLD website (https://council-for-learning-disabilities.org/council-learning-disabilities-outstanding-educator-teacher-of-the-year-award/) for additional information. The submission deadline is Tuesday, May 31, 2022.

Information entered into the online nomination form should only be entered by active CLD chapter presidents or current CLD members in states without an active chapter. For additional information, please contact Dr. Donna Sacco, Leadership Development Committee co-chair, at dmsacco60@gmail.com.
To promote and recognize research, the Council for Learning Disabilities annually presents an award for an outstanding manuscript-length paper about learning disabilities based on a doctoral dissertation completed within the last five (5) years. The manuscript may be submitted for publication but published (or accepted) articles are not eligible for consideration. This recipient receives a complimentary registration and CLD membership or renewal. The recipient is also presented with an honorarium and plaque at the 2022 International Conference on Learning Disabilities in Richmond, Virginia. The recipient will be profiled in LD Forum and on the national CLD website. Additionally, the award winner will present their research at the CLD Conference and will be invited to submit their paper for possible publication in Learning Disability Quarterly.

For complete information on submitting to CLD’s Early Career Research Award (formerly the Outstanding Researcher Award) competition, please visit https://council-for-learning-disabilities.org/council-learning-disabilities-outstanding-researcher-award.

The current deadline for submissions for the Early Career Research Award is Tuesday, May 31, 2022. For more information, please contact Dr. Jessica Toste, Research Committee co-chair, at jrtoste@austin.utexas.edu.

Do you have a question about research that you would like to have answered by an experienced CLD researcher? Drop us an email at AskACLDResearcher@cldinternational.org, and we’ll do our best to find answers for you. We welcome questions related to theory, methodology, and logistics, including the challenges of conducting research in schools. Your questions can be specific and technical, related to your own project, or more generally seeking advice as you begin your career as a researcher. Once we receive your question, we will provide a response or connect you with someone who has expertise in that area. Additionally, we will prepare a quarterly summary of common questions and answers that will be published on our website and here in LD Forum.

Do you work with an advanced doctoral student or an early career professional interested in becoming involved in CLD and who demonstrates leadership potential? CLD is committed to building the leadership capacity of professionals who are entering the special education field. Consider nominating a deserving individual for participation in CLD’s Leadership Institute and Academy.

Nomination forms are due Sunday, May 15, 2022. Please see the Call for Nominations on the CLD website:

- CLD Leadership Institute | Council for Learning Disabilities (council-for-learning-disabilities.org)
- Leadership Academy | Service of Students with Learning Disabilities | Council for Learning Disabilities (council-for-learning-disabilities.org)

Diversity Statement

The Council for Learning Disabilities is committed to celebrating and enriching the field of special education through its diversity. As a group, we pursue the best practices, research, and policies that exemplify enhancing the lives of individuals with learning disabilities, including those from diverse cultural and linguistic backgrounds. As a diverse group of professionals in the field of special education, we believe that this work cannot be completed in a silo, but rather, it must be embedded within every part of what we do. As an organization, we are committed to welcoming, understanding, learning about, and honoring individual diversity.
